

FUTURE SCULPTURE GARDEN

IN THE BOARD GAME Art Collector it's all about paintings. That is logical. The sculpture garden only opened in 1961, 23 years after the death of Helene Kröller-Müller. Still the sculpture garden is essential in this teaching package. Albeit just for some fresh air!

- 1 Take the revolving door to the garden and look around. Which work grabs your attention most?

Artist: .....

Title: .....

..... Date: .....

- 2 Why does it grab your attention?

.....

.....

- 3 Maybe it was your answer, maybe not... but artist Marta Pan was commissioned to make a work of art that 'attracts you into the garden'. She created a floating sculpture, but also designed the pond and the lawn that surrounds it.

In the space below, draw the shapes of the sculpture, the pond and the lawn:

4 Take a good look round and discuss with your classmates. What are the pros and cons of exhibiting in the open air?

Pros:

.....
.....

Cons:

.....
.....

5 Ask a security guard too. Does this employee mention something you didn't know?

.....
.....

6 The garden is world-famous. With over 150 sculptures in 25 hectares, it is Europe's largest sculpture garden. 999 Games and the museum therefore envisage an extension set, with the most beautiful sculptures from the garden.

In your opinion: which two sculptures should certainly be included? Look around, write the details on the cards on the right and make sketches.

Which work do you give the highest value?
(from 1 to 9)
